We are also excited to continue our expansion through the cross-pollination and refinement of our game changing SMART Seeder™ technologies into precision planter based applications.”

From inception Clean Seed focused on developing a robust intellectual property (IP) portfolio to execute on our three phase strategic commercialization plans. (1) Drive initial focus into the creation of revolutionary seeding technologies that confront the apparent deficiencies within the large scale seeding equipment marketplace. (3) Transition the game changing synergies within our SMART Seeder™ technology to directly impact and disrupt the world’s largest row crop equipment market, planters and nutrient application.

The United States contributes over 30% of all planter related global crop production and is the most valuable and attractive marketplace for seeding and planting equipment market in the world.
